MINISTERIAL APPROVAL

Several ministers of Appomattox, Virginia, hereby make known their most hearty approval of the voluntary precautions many parents of the community are taking in protecting their children from the dangers of contracting infantile paralysis. These clergymen are of the firm conviction that all children should be kept within the confines of their own premises. Neighbor's children should not visit each other. Children should be kept at home and not allowed to go to stores, to play grounds, to beaches.

These clergymen believe that the time to clamp down airtight against an epidemic is before any disease becomes of epidemic proportions and not after home after home is visited by the dread diseases which twist children's limbs out of shape and normal use.

However, these same ministers feel that merely keeping children from Sunday School and Church accomplishes nothing unless one hundred per cent voluntary restrictions ban the children from being exposed to polio elsewhere.

REVIVAL AT THE LIBERTY CHAPEL BAPTIST CHURCH

DR. R. CLAYTON PITTS

Doctor R. Clayton Pitts, of the Port Norfolk Baptist Church, of Portsmouth, Va., will be the guest minister at revival services to be held in Liberty Chapel Baptist Church beginning Sunday, August 20, through Friday evening, August 25. Services will begin promptly at 8:00 P. M.

The public is cordially invited to attend the services.

Doctor Pitts is a native Virginian, born in King and Queen County. He attended the University of Richmond, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, University of Marburg, Germany, and the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. He is a friendly man with a message for our time.

The Rev. John P. Leitner is pastor of the Liberty Chapel Baptist Church.

Elder Delphin S. Weinberg, pastor of the Appomattox, Va. Seventh-day Adventist church, was ordained to the gospel ministry in a special service held Saturday, August 12, at the annual Adventist camp meeting in Winona Park, Md.

The rite, which took place in the Sligo Adventist church, where camp session is being held, also witnessed the ordination of three other Virginia men to the ministry.

Mr. Weinberg is also pastor of the Gainesville, Va., church.

The local pastor, aged 43, was graduated from the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md. in 1945, after a course leading up to the ministry. After starting his internship in the Potomac Conference, territory which includes Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia, he was transferred to several districts in Virginia before coming to Appomattox. The newly-minister lives in Appomattox with his wife. His hometown is Augusta, Illinois. He has just completed a new church building in the town of Appomattox.

U. S. Treasury Department

Leaf Growers In Washington For Appeal

An important conference is being held today in Washington, with several hundred farmers from the Virginia dark tobacco belt appearing before officials of the tobacco section of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to seek the separation of Type 21 from Types 22, 23 and 24 in setting acreage allotments.

Plans for the trek to Washington were made at a meeting last Friday in Farmville. Farmers, tobacconists and business men from the belt attended the session last Friday, and urged separation of Type 21 from similiar types produced in Kentucky and Tennessee.

If seperation is granted, it is hoped that acreage reductions may be rescinded. The current appeal is an outgrowth of a mass meeting held in Farmville last March when some 5,000 growers from the 16 county dark tobacco belt gathered to hear the issue discussed.

They believe that there is greater demand for Type 21 and that the Virginia growers lose when their type of leaf is lumped with Types 22, 23 and 24.

The Virginia growers are expected to ask the department for outright separation of Type 21, or as an alternate proposal to request restoration of the reduction made in 1950 acreage, which would amount to some 1,600 acres increase for the belt.

Special Examinations For School Bus Drivers

Richmond, August 23.- A special examination for approximately 450 applicants for school bus drivers' licenses will be given by the Division of Motor Vehicles between August 21 and September 9. Examinations will be conducted by the five Superintendents of Motor Vehicles throughout the State.

The prospective school bus operator must pass a special rigid test contained in a recently prepared pamphlet. The test includes knowledge of the motor vehicle laws, interpretation of road signs and signals, visual acuity, the proper use of mechanical directional signals, and the proper maneuvering of the vehicle after signals are given. Also a complete and satisfactory demonstration of the driver's ability to operate the vehicle with safety. The latter to be determined following a road test, said DMV officials.

The coming test has been arranged through the cooperation of the Superintendent of School to whom the Division recently addressed a letter requesting cooperation in the drive to assure that all operators of school buses have qualified by undergoing and passing the special school bus examination and that they are properly licensed for such operation.

A DMV official pointed out, however, that school bus operators who have previously qualified will be exempt from this special examination if they have been in continuous operation as school bus operators.

In connection with the special test, the Division revealed that from January 1 through December 31, 1949, there were 216 school buses involved in accidents, 13 school children injured.

Officials stated that the response to the Division's request to the Division Superintendents of schools urging them to make certain that the drivers are qualified and properly licensed has not only been most encouraging but far greater than in any previous year.

It is estimated that there are 2,859 school bus operators in the State and the Division, in cooperation with the school authorities, is hopeful the coming school term will reflect an improvement not only in operation of the school buses but in the accident rate, which can only be accomplished by making doubly sure that all bus operators are thoroughly qualified and properly licensed, it was stated.

Appomattox Soldier In Korean Battle Zone

Pfc. Herman Doss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey L. Doss, of Appomattox, is on the front lines in the war in Korea.

We are indebted to one of our valued readers, Mrs. J. F. King, of Arlington, Va., for sending us a clipping from the New York Post, of August 21. It was a picture of Pfc. Doss getting his hair cut by a fellow GI, during a lull in the front line action. The caption read: "Only thing missing in this barbershop deluxe is a manicurist as Pfc. Herman Doss, Appomattox, Va., gets a much-needed haircut fro mCpl. Robert Gusty, Richmond, Va., during a lull in battle somewhere near the Korean front."

The Marshall - Caldwell family reunion will be held this year on September 3, at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Marshall. There will be a program, and the Rev. Cecil G. Carter will give a memorial address honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Marshall. Those attending will bring picnic baskets.

Each year this reunion attracts an attendance of several hundred.

Plenty of Turkey Forecast For State

Plenty of turkey for the consumer's table this fall and winter is the forecast from D. U. Livermore, poultry marketing specialist at V. P. I.

The Shenandoah Valley had turned out 2,689,000 poults—51 per cent more than last year—by late July. For the entire state, poults hatched through June amounted to 32 per cent above the hatch for the same period last year.

Livermore says the large local increases are in contrast to reports for the United States, which indicate only a 3 per cent increase over last year.

The 1950 season for operations of turkey hatcheries in the Valley is about over. The last week in July, volume had dwindled to 25,000 poults hatched.

Livermore says that the 1950 crop in the nation likely will exceed last year's large production of 41 million birds, and will be substantially above the 1935-39 average of 27,000,000. An official estimate of the 1950 crop was due to be released August 22.

July 1 stocks of turkey from the 1949 crop totaled 66,000,000 pounds —more than double the supply on hand on the same date last year. In July, 6,500,000 pounds of 1949-crop turkey were bought by the government under the price support program. This brought the total price support purchases to 15,000,000 pounds, or about 2 per cent of the 1949 production.

There will be no price support for 1950 turkey production. Support for the 1949 crop ended in July.

Will Try 2-Hour Parking Limit

At its regular meeting Monday night the Appomattox town council adopted an ordinance putting a two hour parking limit on the main business section of town. The ordinance, published today, sets the limit on portions of Main St. and Church St. This area usually is filled with cars and now the idea will be to "keep them moving."

Team Loses Vital Game To Bedford

Appomattox Green Sox dropped to second place in the final standings of the Skyline League by losing a play-off game to Bedford at the Lynchburg city stadium last night. Altavista and Amherst will have a play-off game Saturday night at Altavista to determine fourth place in the league.

Should Amherst win this game, Appomattox will play in Amherst Sunday afternoon. Should Altavista win, the Green Sox will play Altavista here one night next week, probably Wednesday. In the league play-offs, the first and third teams meet in a series, and the second and fourth teams to determine the participants in a final league series. Brookneal won third place.

Approximately 1,000 fans Wednesday night's game in Lynchburg; there were 956 paid admissions. From the Appomattox standpoint, the fine attendance was the best thing about the game. The Green Sox used three pitchers, Toney, the starter, followed by Mitchell and Horton. Bedford combed their offerings for 15 hits and 12 runs. Appomattox got to Oliver and Draper for 8 hits and 6 runs. The game was marred by nine scored errors. Bedford batted around in two innings.

COVER CROPS PROVIDE NITROGEN FOR LAND

(Second of a series)

Nitrogen at 5 cents a pound is possible if you turn under legume cover crops on corn acres.

Experiments at the Eastern Virginia Field Station at Williamsburg, conducted by the Station Superintendent H. N. Cowper, show that nitrogen added to the soil through the use of crimson clover costs only 5 cents a pound.

In the tests, corn yields on plots where the legume had been turned under rose to 104 bushels per acre. On plots where no legume was turned under, and where no commercial nitrogen was applied, yields were only 50 bushels.

A yield of 102 bushels of corn was obtained when 100 pounds of nitrogen were applied in commercial fertilizer—but that nitrogen cost 17 cents per pound.

Commercial nitrogen applied to the corn following a legume gave no increase in yield. Basic mineral fertilizer applications were uniform on all test plots.

Agronomists figure that if a farmer has—say 25 acres of corn—he will save enough (about $400) by using a legume cover crop to pay the bill for his fertilizer top dressing.

Corn yields following a cover crop of hairy vetch were 93 bushels per acre, and although vetch is not recommended when small grains are used in the rotation, it has the advantage of a late seeding date. Crimson clover and rye grass can be seeded up until October 15, and Vetch can be seeded up until November 15.

The results at Williamsburg came from plots that were not grazed, but agronomists say that if livestock are taken off the cover crop in time to let the crop grow before plowing there will be no appreciable decrease in the amount of nitrogen added. Any reduction will be more than offset in feed value for the livestock.

Named Library Supervisor

Miss Mildred Kelley has received her M. A. degree in library science from George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn, and has accepted an appointment as supervisor of school libraries and film in Campbell County. Beginning in 1940, her duties in Campbell County have been in supervising libraries.

Miss Kelley taught at Appomattox prior to transferring to Campbell.

Holes Up In Wrong Spot

An o'possum picked the wrong place to spend the night here Wednesday and as a result met sudden death. Young Sam Ferguson and Harry Gordon Lawson came home from the baseball game in Lynchburg and decided the thing to do was visit the kitchen of their grandmother, Mrs. S. L. Ferguson. They found a live o'possum in the wood box. Armed with such weapons as were available, the boys went into action. The particular o'possum won't have to worry any more about where to spend the night.

Sgt. McFadden Wins Commendation

(Special to Times-Virginian)

Castle AFB, Merced, Calif.- Sgt. Shirley T. McFadden, son of Mrs. Otha McFadden, Appomattox, Virginia, a member of this Superfort station's crack fire department, has been commended by Base Commander Col. Charles W. Bicking for helping prevent the explosion of a crashed B-29.

The Superfort, on its way to the Far East, was fully loaded with several thousand gallons of octane gas and 20 crewmen and passengers when it crashed while attempting an emergency landing here. Prompt work by the Castle Fire Department at great personal risk prevented a possible explosion, the colonel said in thanking them for their action.

The veteran 93rd Bomb Wing, to which Sgt. McFadden is assigned, is a station of the 15th Air Force and the Strategic Air Command.

Mr. Howard T. Paulette

Mr. Howard T. Paulette, 40, died Saturday, August 19, at Memorial Hospital, Lynchburg, after a prolonged illness.

Born in Appomattox County, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Fletcher Paulette. Surviving, in addition to his parents, are one sister, Mrs. Oscar Fleshman, of Appomattox, and one brother, Willard T. Paulette, of Staunton. He was a member of the Concord Presbyterian Church.

Funeral services were conducted at 3:00 P. M. Monday, in the Paulette family cemetery. The Rev. J. G. Thompson officiated. Active pallbearers were: Jack Paulette, Ashby Paulette, Carl Ferguson, Billy Ferguson, James Paulette, Burke Paulette, Bill Hunter and David Paulette.

Forestry College At Green Bay Camp

The annual Green Bay Forestry College was held at Green Bay Camp in Prince Edward County August 14 through 18. This school is sponsored by the State Department of Education and the Virginia Forest Service, and is under the supervision of Tom V. Downing, assistant supervisor of agricultural education in the state.

Participating in the school were 125 county agents and agriculture teachers from all over the state. The faculty was made up of Seth Hobart, Wally Custard Charlie Sterley, R. P. Brierley and J. C. Hayes of the Virginia Forest Service, and Prof. Bass, of V. P. I.

College credit was obtained from the courses offered.

Three Will Be Inducted Sept. 5

Three Appomattox County inductees will receive here at 7:29 A. M. September 5, for service in the U. S. armed forces. The three are: John David Martin, Jr., Ramond Chap Garrett, and Alfred Earl Jones, all of Spout Spring.

They had previously passed the pre-induction examinations.

Hope Polio Peak Passed; 17 Cases Here

New polio cases in Appomattox County have pushed the total reported to 17, and caused Appomattox to be listed next to Wythe as a critical epidemic area.

Dr. W. W. Hargrave, of Rustburg, health department doctor for Campbell and Charlotte Counties, has added Appomattox County to the areas he was already serving, and is leading the health department in its program of trying to serve the patients and check the epidemic.

Miss Florine Baily, of Campbell County, Health Department, is now on duty as assistant to Miss Cabiness, County Nurse. Miss Baily has recently served for two weeks with the department in Wythe County.

Next Monday, Miss Flora Headen, a nurse from the State Health Department in Richmond, will come here for an indefinte stay.

The Health Department nurses will train and assist parents in the care of polio victims upon their return from the hospital.

Dr. A. C. McCown, director of the bureau of communicable diseases of the Virginia Health Department, spent Monday in Appomattox, and met with a group of public officials and civic leaders to go over the polio problem here. He expressed a hope that the incidence rate would decrease, and suggested that no immediate decision be made as to the advisability of postponing the opening of public schools. He did suggest that voluntary avoidance of unnecessary crowds be followed and urged that parents summons a physician immediately if their child became sick. Early diagnosis is of the utmost importance.

The incidence rate per 100,000 population is now 200 for Appomattox County, against a statewide rate of 15. The latest count showed 17 cases in this county, nine of them in the past ten days.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has been asked to make a preliminary grant of some $3,000 to aid this county. Local March of Dimes funds are virtually exhausted. No victim will suffer for want of money.

Dr. Hargrave is making daily visits to the local Health Center.

He suggests that no child be allowed to indulge in exhausting exercise, and upon the first evidence of illness that the patient be put to bed and a physician called.

According to past charts, polio incidence declines as cooler weather arrives. It is hoped that that trend will prevail this year and that Appomattox's incidence rate of the last two weeks will decline.

The first case reported in Appomattox County was on July 11. As we go to press, the last case was reported Monday.
